NORDLAB . . .

Nord University Preparedness Management Lab

Nord University preparedness management lab (NORDLAB) provides an arena for education, research, exercises and testing of management tools and collaboration processes related to sea, land and air-based emergency response. In cooperation with world-leading suppliers of emergency preparedness software, modelling & simulation systems and decision making support solutions, Nord University has invested in computer-based simulation capacities integrated with crisis management decision-support tools and command and control support systems.

NORDLAB provides a platform for education, research and development of innovative technologies and procedures to increase the capabilities to manage crisis response, with a special focus on the Arctic environment.

NORDLAB 's aim is to advance knowledge development within the emergency preparedness system and provide support to research and development projects.

NORDLAB is tailor-made for training-serials and table-top exercises to train joint emergency response operations. The lab also serves as test platform for managerial concepts and emergency management support tools.

NORDLAB is equipped with broadband interfaces for joint and combined exercises with external simulator systems and labs.
